Key Risks

5. What are the key risks associated with this Fund?

Manager's Risk

This risk refers to the day-to-day management of the Fund by the Manager which will impact the performance of the Fund. For example, investment decisions undertaken by the Manager, as a result of an incorrect view of the market or any non-compliance with internal policies, investment mandate, the deed, relevant law or guidelines due to factors such as human error or weaknesses in operational process and systems, may adversely affect the performance of the Fund.

Market Risk

Market risk refers to the possibility that an investment will lose value because of a general decline in financial markets, due to economic, political and/or other factors, which will result in a decline in the Fund's NAV.

Liquidity Risk

Liquidity risk refers to the ease of liquidating an asset depending on the asset's volume traded in the market. If the Fund holds assets that are illiquid, or are difficult to dispose of, the value of the Fund will be negatively affected when it has to sell such assets at unfavourable prices.

Country Risk

Investments of the Fund in any country may be affected by changes in the economic and political climate, restriction on currency repatriation or other developments in the law or regulations of the countries in which the Fund invests in. For example, the deteriorating economic condition of such countries may adversely affect the value of the investments undertaken by the Fund in those affected countries. This in turn may cause the NAV of the Fund or prices of units to fall.

Currency Risk

The impact of the exchange rate movement between the Base Currency and the currency of the respective Classes may result in a depreciation of the investor's holdings as expressed in currency of the respective Classes.

A hedged Class provides mitigation to the currency risk arising from the difference between the currency of the Class and the Base Currency. You should note that currency hedging does not entirely eliminate currency risk. Hence, the unhedged portion of the hedged Class will be affected by the exchange rate and it may cause fluctuation of NAV of the respective hedged Class. If the exchange rate moves favourably, the hedged Class would not benefit from any upside in currency movement due to the hedging strategy. In addition, hedging is subject to a minimum size of entering into a hedging contract and the cost of hedging may affect returns of the respective hedged Class.

Investment Manager Risk

The Manager has no control over the investment techniques and knowledge, operational controls and management of Fund which feeds into the Target Fund managed by another party. In the event the Target Fund is mismanaged by the Investment Manager of the Target Fund, the NAV of the Fund would be affected negatively. Should such a situation arise, the Manager may replace the Target Fund with another fund of a similar objective (in consultation with the Trustee and subject to unit holders' approval).

Risk Considerations for Investing in Derivatives

The Manager may use derivatives such as futures and options to hedge against adverse movements in currency exchange rates. This involves special risks, including but not limited to:

- the risk of loss from default by the counterparty, typically as a consequence of insolvency or failed settlement; and
- the risk of the supply and demand factors in the derivatives market and in other related markets impacting the liquidity of the derivatives market adversely, which in turn would adversely affect the derivative's pricing and the Fund.

The Manager will only enter into hedging transactions where the counterparty is a financial institution with a minimum long-term credit rating by any domestic or global rating agency which indicates strong capacity for timely payment of financial obligations. In the event where the counterparty or issuer's rating falls below the minimum required or it ceases to be rated, the Manager will liquidate its position within 6 months or sooner, unless the Trustee considers it to be in the best interest of investors to do otherwise.

Specific Risks associated with the Target Fund

- Natural Resources Sector Risk
- Small-Cap Risks
