Annex No 1 to the Terms and Conditions for Bank ICBC (JSC) Brokerage Services on the Securities Market

Notification (declaration) of risks associated with the conduct of operations in the stock and other financial markets, including those associated with the emergence of uncovered positions

The declaration on the risks arising during the work on securities market and the foreign exchange market.

The purpose of this Declaration is to provide you with information about the main risks associated with transactions in the securities market. Please note that this Declaration does not disclose all risks in the securities market due to the variety of situations that arise on it. In the general sense, the risk is the possibility of losses in the course of financial transactions due to the possible adverse influence of various kinds of factors. Below are the main risks associated with your operations in the securities market.

I. Systemic risk

This risk affects several financial institutions and manifests itself in a decrease in their ability to perform their functions. Due to the large degree of interaction and interdependence of financial institutions among themselves, the assessment of systemic risk is difficult, but its implementation can affect all participants in the financial market.

II. Market Risk

This risk manifests itself in an unfavorable change in the prices (value) of financial instruments belonging to you, including due to an unfavorable change in the political situation, a sharp devaluation of the national currency, a crisis in the government debt market, a banking and currency crisis, force majeure circumstances, mainly of a natural and military nature, and as a result, leads to a decrease in profitability or even losses. Depending on the chosen strategy, the market (price) risk will consist of an increase (decrease) in the price of financial instruments. You should be aware that the value of the financial instruments you own can both rise and fall, and its growth in the past does not mean its growth in the future.

Special attention should be paid to the following market risks:

1. Currency risk

Currency risk manifests itself in an unfavorable change in the ruble exchange rate against a foreign currency, in which your income from owning financial instruments may be subject to inflationary effects (a decrease in real purchasing power), as a result of which you may lose part of your income, as well as incur losses. Currency risk may also lead to a change in the size of liabilities for financial instruments related to foreign currency or foreign financial instruments, which may lead to losses or make it difficult to settle on them.

2. Interest rate risk

It manifests itself in an unfavorable change in the interest rate affecting the exchange rate value of fixed income bonds. Interest rate risk may be caused by a mismatch in the timing of the demand (repayment) of claims and liabilities, as well as an uneven degree of change in interest rates on claims and liabilities.

3. The risk of bankruptcy of the issuer of shares

It manifests itself in a sharp drop in the share price of a joint-stock company recognized as insolvent, or in anticipation of such insolvency. In order to reduce market risk, you should carefully consider the choice and diversification of financial instruments. In addition, carefully read the terms of your interaction with Bank ICBC (JSC) in order to assess the costs associated with owning and operating financial instruments and make sure that they are acceptable to you and do not deprive you of the income you expect.

III. Liquidity risk

This risk manifests itself in a decrease in the ability to sell financial instruments at the required price due to a decrease in demand for them. This risk may manifest itself, in particular, if it is necessary to quickly sell financial instruments, in losses associated with a significant decrease in their value.

IV. Credit risk

This risk lies in the possibility of non-fulfillment of contractual and other obligations assumed by others in connection with your operations. Credit risks include the following risks:

1. Risk of default on bonds and other debt securities

It consists in the possibility of insolvency of the issuer of debt securities, which will lead to the impossibility or decrease in the probability of paying it off on time and in full.

2. Counterparty risk

The risk of a third—party counterparty is manifested in the risk of non-fulfillment of obligations to you or Bank ICBC (JSC) on the part of counterparties. Bank ICBC (JSC) must take measures to minimize the counterparty's risk, but cannot exclude it completely. The counterparty's risk is especially high when performing transactions performed in an unorganized market, without the participation of clearing organizations that assume the risks of default. You should be aware that, although Bank ICBC (JSC) may act in your interests on its own behalf, the risks it assumes as a result of such actions, including the risk of non-fulfillment or improper fulfillment of obligations of third parties to Bank ICBC (JSC), are borne by you. Assess exactly where the assets transferred by you to Bank ICBC (JSC) will be stored, and whether you are ready to carry out operations outside the centralized clearing infrastructure.

3. Risk of non-fulfillment of obligations to you by Bank ICBC (JSC)

The risk of non-fulfillment by Bank ICBC (JSC) of certain obligations to you is a type of counterparty risk. The legislation requires that the broker's funds and the funds of his clients be kept in different bank accounts, so that they are protected in the event of the bankruptcy of Bank ICBC (JSC). Carefully read the draft agreement in order to assess what powers for the use of your property / assets will be held by Bank ICBC (JSC), what are the rules for its / their storage, as well as return.

Your broker - Bank ICBC (JSC) is a member of a self-regulatory organization in accordance with the requirements of the legislation, to which you can apply in case of violation of your rights and interests. State regulation and supervision of the activities of issuers, professional participants in the securities market, trade organizers and other financial organizations is carried out by the Central Bank of the Russian Federation, which you can also contact in case of violation of your rights and interests. In addition, you have the right to apply for protection to judicial and law enforcement agencies.

V. Legal risk

It is associated with possible negative consequences of the approval of legislation or regulations, standards of self-regulatory organizations regulating the securities market, or other sectors of the economy that may lead to negative consequences for you. The legal risk also includes the possibility of changing the rules for calculating taxes, tax rates, canceling tax deductions and other changes in tax legislation that may lead to negative consequences for you.

VI. Operational risk

It consists in the possibility of causing you losses as a result of violations of the internal procedures of Bank ICBC (JSC), errors and unfair actions of its employees, failures in the operation of technical means of Bank ICBC (JSC), its partners, infrastructure organizations, including bid organizers, clearing organizations, as well as other organizations. Operational risk may exclude or complicate the execution of transactions and as a result lead to losses. Read the contract carefully in order to assess which of the risks, including the risks of which technical failures, are borne by Bank ICBC (JSC), and which of the risks are borne by you.

Risks associated with a potential conflict of interest

A conflict of interests arises as a result of professional activity in the securities market on the terms of combining various types of professional activity. The commercial activities and economic goals of Bank ICBC (JSC) and its affiliates may contradict the economic goals of the Client and may lead to a conflict of interests.

Please note:

- That the funds transferred to Bank ICBC (JSC) are not subject to insurance in accordance with Federal Law No. 177-FZ of December 23, 2003 "On Insurance of Deposits of Individuals in Banks of the Russian Federation";
- The Client has the right to receive, upon request, information on the types and amounts of payments (the procedure for determining the amounts of payments) that the Client will have to pay for the provision of financial services, including information on the amount of remuneration (the procedure for determining the amount of remuneration) of Bank ICBC (JSC) and the procedure for paying remuneration in accordance with the Regulations;
- The Client has the right to receive the following information upon request:
- Specifications of the contract, which is a derivative financial instrument;

- Information on the amount of funds to be paid at the time of conclusion of the contract, which is a derivative financial instrument;
- The source of obtaining information about fluctuations in the price (value) of the underlying asset for the last 6 (Six) months preceding the date of conclusion of the contract, which is a derivative financial instrument (if there is information about such a source).

Given the above, we recommend that you carefully consider whether the risks arising from transactions in the financial market are acceptable to you, taking into account your investment goals and financial capabilities.

This Declaration is not intended to force you to abandon operations on the securities market, but is designed to help you assess their risks and responsibly approach the issue of choosing your investment strategy and the terms of the brokerage agreement.

Make sure that this Risk Declaration is clear to you, and if necessary, get clarifications from the Bank ICBC (JSC) or a consultant specializing in relevant issues.

Declaration on the risks associated with the execution of uncovered transactions

The purpose of this Declaration is to provide you with information about the main risks associated with uncovered transactions (that is, transactions that result in an uncovered position — for the fulfillment of obligations for which, at the time of the transaction, the client's property is insufficient, taking into account other previously concluded transactions). These deals are not suitable for all customers. Regulatory acts limit the risks of clients on margin and uncovered transactions, including regulating the maximum "leverage" — the ratio of the client's obligations on transactions concluded in his interests and the client's property intended for transactions in accordance with the brokerage agreement. However, these transactions are not suitable for all clients, as they involve additional risks and require an assessment of whether you are ready to bear them.

I. Market risk

When agreeing to make margin and uncovered transactions, you should take into account the fact that the amount of losses in case of unfavorable market movement for your portfolio increases with increasing leverage. In addition to the general market risk borne by the client performing transactions on the securities market, in the event of uncovered transactions, you will bear the risk of adverse price changes both in respect of securities, as a result of the acquisition of which an uncovered position has arisen or increased, and the risk in respect of assets that serve as collateral. At the same time, if an uncovered position arose or increased as a result of the sale of securities, the amount of losses is unlimited. When making uncovered transactions, you should take into account that the ability to dispose of assets that are collateral for such transactions is limited. The property (part of the property) belonging to you, as a result of an uncovered transaction, is a security for the fulfillment of your obligations to Bank ICBC (JSC) and the possibility of disposing of it may be limited up to a complete prohibition of making any transactions with it. The amount of collateral is changed in accordance with the procedure stipulated by the contract, and as a result, you may be limited in the ability to dispose of your property to a greater extent than before the uncovered transaction. It is also necessary to take into account the possibility of forcibly closing a position. An unfavorable price change may lead to the need to deposit additional funds in order to bring the collateral into compliance with the requirements of regulatory acts and the brokerage agreement, which must be done in a short time, which may not be sufficient for you. The regulations and terms of the brokerage agreement allow Bank ICBC (JSC) to "forcibly close a position" without your consent, that is, to purchase securities at the expense of your funds or sell your Securities. This can be done at existing, including unprofitable, prices and lead to losses for you. Forced closing of a position may be caused by sharp fluctuations in market prices, which led to a decrease in the value of your portfolio. The forced closure of a position may be caused by the requirements of regulatory acts or by the introduction by the Bank ICBC (JSC) unilaterally of changes to the list of securities that may be collateral for uncovered positions. Forced closure may be caused by a change in the values of risk rates calculated by the clearing organization and (or) used by Bank ICBC (JSC) due to an increase in the volatility of the relevant securities.

In all these cases, forcibly closing a position can cause you significant losses, despite the fact that after closing a position, the change in prices for financial instruments may take a favorable direction for you, and you would have received income if your position had not been closed. The amount of these losses may exceed the value of the assets in your account in case of an unfavorable combination of circumstances.

II. Liquidity risk

If the value of the uncovered position on individual securities is significant in comparison with the volume of the corresponding securities in free circulation and (or) in comparison with the volume of trading on an organized market, the risk of loss of liquidity of the uncovered transaction increases. Difficulties in acquiring or selling assets can lead to increased losses compared to conventional transactions. Similarly, it is necessary to take into account the increasing risk of loss of liquidity if securities are the security of your uncovered position and the sale of a significant number of securities may be required to close the uncovered position. Your Orders aimed at limiting losses may not always limit losses to the expected level, since within the framework of the current market situation, the execution of such an order at the price you specified may not be possible.

Taking into account the above, we recommend that you carefully consider whether the risks arising during the relevant operations are acceptable to you, taking into account your investment goals and financial capabilities.

This Declaration is not intended to force you to abandon such operations, but is intended to help you assess their risks and responsibly approach the issue of choosing your investment strategy and the terms of the agreement with Bank ICBC (JSC).

Make sure that this Risk Declaration is clear to you, and if necessary, get clarifications from the Bank ICBC (JSC) or a consultant specializing in relevant issues.

Declaration of risks associated with the acquisition of foreign securities

The purpose of this Declaration is to provide the Client with information about the specific risks associated with the acquisition of foreign securities.

This Declaration is an integral and integral part of the comprehensive Risk Declaration set out in this Annex No. 1 to the Regulations.

Foreign securities can be purchased on the Russian, including organized, stock market.

Transactions with Foreign securities are characterized by general risks associated with operations on the securities market, as well as risks associated with sanctions, legislative and other restrictions, as indicated below.

I. Systemic risks

In relation to Foreign Securities, the systemic risks inherent in the Russian stock market are complemented by similar systemic risks inherent in the country where the relevant Foreign Securities are issued or traded. The main factors affecting the level of systemic risk in general include the political situation, the specifics of national legislation, currency regulation and the likelihood of their changes, the state of public finances, the availability and degree of development of the financial system of the country of the location of the person obligated by such a security. The level of systemic risk can be influenced by many other factors, including the likelihood of restrictions on investments in certain sectors of the economy or the likelihood of a simultaneous devaluation of the national currency. The generally accepted integral assessment of the systemic risk of investing in a Foreign security is a "sovereign rating" in a foreign or national currency assigned to the country in which the issuer is registered, however, it should be borne in mind that the ratings are only benchmarks and may not correspond to the real situation at a particular moment. In the case of Transactions with foreign depositary receipts, in addition to the risks associated with the issuer of the receipts themselves, it is necessary to take into account the risks associated with the issuer of the Foreign securities represented by these receipts. Currently, the legislation allows Russian investors, including those who are not qualified, to purchase Foreign securities admitted to public placement and (or) public circulation in the Russian Federation both abroad and in Russia, and also allows accounting of rights to such Securities by Russian depositories. Meanwhile, there are risks of changing regulatory approaches to ownership and operations, as well as to accounting for rights to foreign financial instruments, as a result of which it may be necessary to alienate them contrary to your plans.

II. Legal risks

When purchasing Foreign securities, it is necessary to be aware that they are not always analogues of Russian Securities. In any case, the rights granted under them and the rules for their implementation may differ significantly from the rights under Russian Securities. The possibilities of judicial protection of rights on Foreign securities may be significantly limited by the need to apply to foreign judicial and law enforcement agencies according to established rules, which may differ significantly from those in force in Russia. In addition, when dealing with Foreign securities, in most cases you will not be able to rely on the protection of your rights and legitimate interests by Russian authorized bodies.

III. Sanctions risk

Due to the sanctions imposed by the United States, the United Kingdom, the European Union and a number of other countries, and the retaliatory restrictions imposed by the Russian Federation, there is a risk that owners of Foreign securities will not receive income/payments on them recorded in foreign depositories. When storing Foreign securities with a foreign depository, there is a risk of blocking assets on accounts in foreign depositories. When purchasing Foreign Securities, the Client understands that additional sanctions and restrictions may be imposed both by the Russian Federation and by the United States, Great Britain, European Union countries and other countries for the storage of Foreign securities, clearing operations in respect of Foreign securities, the possibility of transferring such securities from one account to another, from one depository to another, including cross-border transfers. There are also restrictions on the transfer of securities via the Euroclear and Clearstream – NSD "bridge". When purchasing Foreign Securities, the Client is aware that these restrictions may be lifted and re-introduced before the maturity date of Foreign Securities. By purchasing Foreign Securities, the Client bears the risk of being unable to transfer Foreign Securities to an account opened in the territory of the Russian Federation, as well as making settlements on Foreign Securities in connection with the beneficial ownership of a Russian person. Each securities exchange, as a rule, has the right to suspend or restrict trading in any or all securities. Such suspension or restriction will make it impossible to sell all or part of the Foreign Securities. By purchasing such securities, the Client assumes the risk of non-receipt or partial non-receipt of investments in Foreign Securities.

IV. Market risk

This risk manifests itself in an unfavorable change in the prices (value) of Foreign Securities owned by you, including due to an unfavorable change in the political situation, a sharp devaluation of the national currency, a crisis in the government debt market, a banking and currency crisis, force majeure, mainly of a spontaneous and military nature, and as a consequence, leads to reduced profitability or even losses. Depending on the chosen strategy, the market (price) risk will consist in an increase (decrease) in the price of financial instruments. You should be aware that the value of financial instruments owned by you can both increase and decrease, and its growth in the past does not mean its growth in the future.

V. Currency risk

Currency risk manifests itself in an unfavorable change in the ruble exchange rate against a foreign currency, in which your income from owning Foreign securities may be subject to inflationary effects (a decrease in real purchasing power), as a result of which you may lose part of your income, as well as incur losses. Currency risk may also lead to a change in the size of liabilities for Foreign securities related to foreign currency or foreign financial instruments, which may lead to losses or make it difficult to settle on them.

VI. Interest rate risk

It manifests itself in an unfavorable change in the interest rate affecting the exchange rate value of fixed income bonds. Interest rate risk may be caused by a mismatch in the timing of the demand (repayment) of claims and liabilities, as well as an uneven degree of change in interest rates on claims and liabilities.

VII. Risk of bankruptcy of the issuer of shares

It is manifested in a sharp drop in the price of Foreign securities of the issuer recognized as insolvent, or in the anticipation of such insolvency.

VIII. Credit risk

This risk lies in the possibility of non-fulfillment of contractual and other obligations assumed by others in connection with your operations. Risk of default on bonds and other debt securities The risk of default lies in the possibility of insolvency of the issuer of debt securities, which will lead to the impossibility or decrease in the probability of repaying it on time and in full.

IX. Counterparty risk

The risk of a third-party counterparty is manifested in the risk of non-fulfillment of obligations to you or Bank ICBC (JSC) on the part of counterparties. Bank ICBC (JSC) must take measures to minimize the counterparty's risk, but cannot exclude it completely. The counterparty's risk is especially high when performing transactions performed in an unorganized market, without the participation of clearing organizations that assume the risks of default. You should be aware that, although Bank ICBC (JSC) acts in your interests on its own behalf, the risks it takes as a result of such actions, including the risk of non-fulfillment or improper fulfillment of obligations of third parties to Bank ICBC (JSC), are borne by you. You should keep in mind that in all cases the client's funds are stored in a bank account, and you bear the risk of bankruptcy of the bank in which they are stored. Evaluate exactly where the assets transferred by you to Bank ICBC (JSC) will be stored, and whether you are ready to carry out operations outside the centralized clearing infrastructure.

X. The risk of non-fulfillment of obligations to you by your broker - Bank ICBC (JSC)

The risk of non-fulfillment of certain obligations to you is a type of counterparty risk. The legislation requires to keep the funds of Bank ICBC (JSC) and the funds of its customers in different bank accounts, so that they are protected in the event of bankruptcy of Bank ICBC (JSC).

XI. Disclosure of information

Russian legislation allows disclosure of information in respect of Foreign Securities according to the rules applicable abroad and in English. Evaluate your willingness to analyze information in English, as well as whether you understand the differences between the financial reporting rules adopted in Russia, International Financial Reporting Standards or financial reporting rules, according to which information is published by the issuer of Foreign Securities. Also, Russian trade organizers and (or) brokers can translate some documents (information) disclosed by a foreign issuer for your convenience. In this case, the translation can be perceived solely as auxiliary information to officially disclosed documents (information) in a foreign language. Always consider the possibility of translator's mistakes, including those related to the possible different translation of the same foreign words and phrases or the absence of a generally accepted Russian equivalent.

Taking into account the above, we recommend that you carefully consider whether the risks arising during the relevant operations are acceptable to you, taking into account your investment goals and financial capabilities.

This Declaration is not intended to force you to abandon such operations, but is intended to help you assess their risks and responsibly approach the issue of choosing your investment strategy and the terms of the contract.

Declaration of risks associated with the conclusion of contracts that are derivative financial instruments, the underlying asset of which are securities of foreign issuers or indices calculated on such securities

The purpose of this Declaration is to provide you with general information about the main risks associated with the conclusion of contracts that are derivative financial instruments, the underlying asset of which are securities of foreign issuers or indices calculated on such securities (hereinafter - derivative financial instruments with a foreign underlying asset). The conclusion of these contracts is associated with risks characteristic of all derivative financial instruments, as well as specific risks caused by the foreign origin of the underlying asset.

Risks associated with derivative financial instruments

These tools are not suitable for all customers. Moreover, some types of derivative financial instruments involve a higher level of risk than others. Thus, when buying an option contract, the client's losses will not exceed the amount of the paid premiums, remuneration and expenses associated with their commission. The sale of option contracts from the point of view of the client's risk and the conclusion of futures contracts, forward contracts and swap contracts are comparable - with relatively small adverse price fluctuations in the market, you are at risk of significant losses. The conclusion of such transactions can be recommended only to experienced investors with significant financial capabilities and practical knowledge in the field of investment strategies.

This declaration also applies to derivative financial instruments aimed at reducing the risks of other operations on the stock market. Carefully evaluate how your derivative financial instruments relate to the operations for which you intend to limit the risks, and make sure that the volume of your position corresponds to the volume of the spot market position that you are hedging.

Market (price) risk

In addition to the general market (price) risk that the client carries out transactions in the securities market, you, in the case of futures, forward and swap agreements (contracts), as well as in the case of the sale of option contracts, will bear the risk of adverse price changes in both financial instruments that are the underlying asset of derivative financial instruments, and the risk in relation to assets that serve as collateral. In the event of an unfavorable price change, you may lose funds that are collateral for derivative financial instruments in a relatively short period of time.

Liquidity risk

If your investment strategy provides for the possibility of the need to close a position under the relevant contract (or conclude a transaction with another contract that reduces the risk under this contract), pay attention to the liquidity of the relevant instruments, since closing positions on illiquid instruments can lead to significant additional losses due to their low liquidity.

Please note that, as a rule, contracts with more distant deadlines are less liquid compared to instruments with close deadlines. If the contract you have concluded, which is a derivative financial instrument, is illiquid, and you have a need to close a position, be sure to consider, in addition to closing a position on this instrument, alternative options for eliminating risk by entering into transactions with other derivative financial instruments or with underlying assets.

Using alternative options can lead to less losses. At the same time, difficulties with closing positions and losses in price can lead to an increase in losses compared to conventional transactions. Your orders aimed at limiting losses may not always limit losses to the expected level, since within the framework of the current market situation, the execution of such an order at the price you specified may not be possible. The restriction of the disposal of funds, assets belonging to you, as a result of the conclusion of a transaction / contract with a derivative financial instrument, will be a security for the fulfillment of your obligations under the transaction / contract and the disposal of them, that is, the possibility of making transactions with such instruments by you, will be limited.

Risk of forced closing of a position

An unfavorable change in the price may lead to the need to deposit additional funds in order to bring the collateral into compliance with the requirements of regulatory acts and the brokerage agreement, which must be done in a short time, which may not be enough for you. In this case, Bank ICBC (JSC) has the right to "forcibly close a position" without your additional consent, that is, to conclude a contract that is a derivative financial instrument, or to purchase securities at the expense of your funds, or to sell your securities. This can be done at existing, including unprofitable, prices and lead to losses for you.

Forced closing of a position is aimed at risk management. You may incur significant losses despite the fact that after that the change in the prices of financial instruments may take a favorable direction for you and you would have received income if your position had not been closed.

Risks caused by the foreign origin of the underlying asset

Systemic risks

In relation to the underlying asset of derivative financial instruments – securities of foreign issuers and indices calculated on such securities, the systemic risks inherent in the Russian stock market are supplemented by similar systemic risks inherent in the country where the relevant foreign securities are issued or traded.

The main factors affecting the level of systemic risk in general include:

- political situation,
- features of national legislation,
- features of currency regulation,
- the likelihood of changes in legislation and/or currency regulation,
- state of public finances,
- the presence and degree of development of the financial system of the country of the location of the person liable for foreign securities.

The level of systemic risk can be influenced by many other factors, including the likelihood of restrictions on investments in certain sectors of the economy or the likelihood of a simultaneous devaluation of the national currency.

A generally accepted integral assessment of the systemic risk of investments is a "sovereign rating" in foreign or national currency assigned to the country in which the issuer of a foreign security is registered by international rating agencies, however, it should be borne in mind that ratings are only benchmarks and may not correspond to the real situation at a particular moment.

Currently, the legislation allows Russian investors to conclude contracts that are Russian derivative financial instruments, the underlying asset of which are securities of foreign issuers or indices calculated on such securities.

Meanwhile, there are risks of changing regulatory approaches to the relevant operations, as a result of which it may be necessary to make transactions aimed at terminating obligations under these agreements, contrary to your plans.

Legal risks

It is necessary to be aware that foreign financial instruments, which are the basic assets of derivative financial instruments, are not always analogues of Russian financial instruments. In any case, the rights granted under them and the rules for their implementation may differ significantly from the rights under Russian financial instruments.

The possibilities of judicial protection of rights on derivative financial instruments with a foreign underlying asset may be significantly limited by the need to apply to foreign judicial and law enforcement agencies according to established rules, which may differ significantly from those in force in Russia.

In addition, in most cases you will not be able to rely on the protection of your rights and legitimate interests by the Russian authorized bodies.

Disclosure of information

Disclosure of information in respect of foreign securities that are the underlying asset of derivative financial instruments is carried out according to the rules in force abroad and in English. Evaluate your willingness to analyze information in English, as well as whether you understand the differences between the financial reporting rules adopted in Russia, International Financial Reporting Standards or financial reporting rules, according to which information is published by the issuer of foreign securities. Also, Russian trade organizers and (or) brokers can translate some documents (information) disclosed by a foreign issuer for your convenience. In this case, the translation can be perceived solely as auxiliary information to officially disclosed documents (information) in a foreign language.

Always consider the possibility of translator's mistakes, including those related to the possible different translation of the same foreign words and phrases, or the absence of a generally accepted Russian equivalent.
